

SWEET PEA SHOW NEXT SPRING, SO PLANT THIS WEEK

Annual Exhibition Will Be Held Under Auspices Woman's Club—Expert Tells How to Raise This Flower

Plans have been completed by the civic educational department of the Woman's club of Phoenix for the sweet pea show to be held some time next spring. The second week of October has been designated as sweet pea planting week. The sweet pea show which will be held in the Woman's club is to be given to demonstrate the horticultural possibilities of this section and to show what can be done in this line in the way of beautifying the city.

Prizes will be offered by the civic educational department of the Woman's club to the grammar schools of the valley for the best exhibit of sweet peas. For the best general collection exhibited the Arizona Seed & Floral Company is offering a cup to the women's clubs of the valley. This cup will be retained permanently by the club winning it three times in addition to this cup, other prizes are offered and it is expected that some wonderful displays will be shown at the show in the spring.

E. C. McNabb of the Arizona Seed & Floral Company has been asked to give growing instructions to those wishing to enter into any of the sweet pea contests. He says:

How to Grow Them
"No flowers are more popular or more easily grown than sweet peas. They should be planted along a fence or where the vines can be trained up. Dig a trench about two feet wide and eighteen inches deep, putting the surface soil to itself and the subsoil where it can be thoroughly mixed with well-rotted manure and straw to facilitate drainage and act as a fertilizer. Replace the subsoil and cover with the surface soil, to which has been added a sprinkling of fine bone fertilizer. Open a trench across the bed about six inches deep and bank up both sides and ends of the spaced area to hold water. Plant one ounce of seed to fifteen feet of drill and cover about one inch, packing the soil well to the seed and leaving a loose mulch on top. After the peas are up, pull the dirt to the surface level, but still leaving it well banked to facilitate watering until they are well started.

Frequent cultivation is important and after the peas are ten to twelve inches high a mulch of fine manure should be applied to the surface. A good method of watering sweet peas is to submerge from a ditch twelve to fifteen inches from the vines. It is necessary to keep them well-watered. Wire netting affords an excellent trellis and should be placed by the time the tiny tendrils make their first appearance. By following these directions the novice should have no trouble at all in growing satisfactory flowers.

Further information regarding the contest may be had at the Woman's club from the committee in charge.

NO STUNTING OVER COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O.—If Uncle Sam wants to carry mail through Columbus air he's gotta behave himself. The least bit of sportive conduct on the part of the postoffice mail planes while above Columbus will result in the pinching of the pilots. If the city dads have their way, they're drafting an ordinance to forbid all stunt flying over the city.

ATTORNEY GENERAL ADMITS GOVERNOR STATE MILITIA HEAD

Reversing the opinion he rendered last December, Attorney General Wiley E. Jones yesterday filed a stipulation in the supreme court giving formal approval to the employment of Will E. Ryan as attorney to Gov. Thomas E. Campbell in the many litigations which had to do with the establishment of the governor's right to appoint Walter S. Ingalls as adjutant general. The claim for the numerous times Ryan was the attorney for the governor in the Ingalls-Harris suits amounted to $1500, which was paid the lawyer a month ago, when Attorney General Jones informed Jesse Boyce, state auditor, that the claim, by reason previously rendered against the authority of the state and departments of state to employ an attorney outside of the office of the attorney general, was not barred. In the opinion of Sept. 3 the attorney general refers to the governor as "commander-in-chief," which he bitterly denied during the controversies over the office of adjutant general, Jones claiming that the governor was not the commander-in-chief of the state and that he had no right to remove Harris.

The stipulation resulted in the dismissal of the case. Mr. Boyce refused to pay the claim of the governor's counsel when the claim was first presented last winter, basing his refusal on an opinion of the attorney general. Mr. Jones advised Mr. Boyce that there was no authority under the laws of the state for the payment of the claim. He said:

"Therefore I advise you that you issue no warrant for said claim nor any amount thereof. It is not necessary that I set forth at this time the legal defenses that the state has against same, but advise you that Mr. Ryan never has been employed by this department and advise you further that state officers cannot employ attorneys at their will under the constitution and laws of this state to constitute a legal claim against the state."

"I desire that you file this as the ruling of this department upon the constitution and laws of the state of Arizona."

While Mr. Jones has changed his mind, he wants it understood that the Ryan case is an exception. Here is what he says in the stipulation he signed:

"It is further understood and agreed that this stipulation is not to be considered as any acknowledgment by the attorney general of any power of authority vested in state officers or state departments to employ at state expense any attorneys for suits pertaining to the matters of their respective offices and departments. And so far as the attorney general is concerned, this stipulation is no more than an acknowledgment that, under all the circumstances surrounding the particular employment of Will E. Ryan as attorney for the governor, who was acting in the exercise of his constitutional power as commander-in-chief of the military forces of the state, in the litigation hereby referred to, such employment was proper and the services by Will E. Ryan as attorney was and is a proper claim for payment from funds appropriated for support of the national guard."

Another echo of the Harris-Ingalls controversy came with the dismissal of the action in which Charles W. Harris was the appellant and Governor Campbell the appellee. Shortly after Governor Campbell appointed Ingalls as adjutant general of Arizona and while the office was still claimed by Harris, the attorney was entered and certain records of the office removed in the attempt to give Adjutant General Ingalls control of the office. Harris immediately answered by bringing suit against the governor asking that he be restrained from interfering with his carrying out the duties of his office. The lower court held with the governor, and yesterday the supreme court dismissed the case for failure to prosecute.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. VON KLEINSMID WILL VISIT SOUTH AMERICA

President von Kleinsmid of the University of Arizona has been granted a leave of absence for 60 days and with Mrs. von Kleinsmid will make a trip to South America. The following from the University Press tells of his coming trip and of the many courtesies extended to this distinguished Arizona educator.

The Board of Regents of the University have voted President von Kleinsmid a leave of absence for sixty days. It was the idea of the board that at least this length of time should be taken by the president for rest and recreation after the strenuous work of the past six years during which time he has had no vacation at all. With the rapidly growing institution and the multiplication of new university interests it has been impossible to find relief for vacation among the increased burdens falling upon the administration. However, in the light of the great opportunities opening in the Latin-American countries for increased social and commercial intercourse, Dr. von Kleinsmid has decided to spend his two months in a trip to Panama and down the west coast of South America.

"Under the encouragement and assistance of the federal department of state and the Pan-American union of Washington, D. C., he will visit the institutions of higher learning in Panama, Ecuador, Bolivia, Peru and Chili, returning to Arizona early in December. Official invitations have been received by him from these institutions through their several embassies and legations at Washington and such arrangements are being made as to afford the best possible opportunities for gaining first hand knowledge of these countries and their institutions. This is in line with the large policy of the university, inaugurated by President von Kleinsmid to the effect that the institutions owe it to their students and state to bring into consideration and discussion problems of world significance rather than to limit the interests of the institution to matters of academic and local consideration alone."

"As an American educational advisor to the Republic of Mexico, the president hopes to obtain much first hand knowledge which will be of assistance in the educational reorganization of that country."

"Mrs. von Kleinsmid will accompany the president on this trip. They will sail from New Orleans Oct. 13 on the United Fruit company's steamer Cartago for Panama. This will necessitate their leaving Tucson Saturday evening, Oct. 9."
